

The following represents an expert's approach to categorizing and solving mechanics problems. Note that all problems can be solved using either Newton's Laws or Conservation Laws, but most problems are easier using one method or the other.

